

SAFE.
Want-
Could

JAIL.

Families of Dr.
on. Who Lived
noble Sec-oklyn.

lives at No. 25
lars that he
ep bunco trick, neighbor, WILLson denies the
the Raymond an examination ears ago, when moved into the soon made the door neighbors.

at that his loyd, young was on the

were years
were ave Mrs. contained
are of it.

alla's torn was in a jewelry dilemma

replied
his room damp

at day
ed to wear
of gold gold

only 11. for they tally

ery, but in some hand, he would aisant until one to be married, and son for it.

she was the latter is surrey for the things, she has the company to open the safe.

After several days, if you are in still without their, and have him called at the

the Merolles
were they notified
Thompson
yesterday

cordially, "I saw you open the safe, and I am sure you have the things."

Thompson
yesterday
said, "I am sick and tired of this story front of me."

was a small burial could these tickets showing they had been pawned
very day Mrs.

Mrs. Thompson raised $62 to a to the
her Street Police Court, where he entered a plea of "not guilty,"

he said his wife and a aunt were in Jefferson ville, N. Y., and that he did not know when they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

Loss of Jewels Disclosed by the Opening of a Small Safe.
When the family of Dr. Merolla, of Second place, Brooklyn, went to the country last Summer a number of valuables were placed in the keeping of W. A. Thompson, a next-door neighbor. Yesterday Thompson's safe was opened and valuables were gone. He subsequently admitted that he had pawned the things, and was arrested.

SHE THREW AN INKSTANK.
Pretty Mrs. Romaine Lost Her Temper in a Telegraph Office and Was Arrested.

According to Policeman Clark, Mrs. Lou Romaine, of No. 157 West Forty-eighth street, twenty-two years old, pretty and dressed in the height of fashion, had her own temper to blame for placing her in the long line of prisoners that appeared before Magistrate Mott, in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning.

She pleaded tearfully for the privilege of a seat apart from her disagreeable surroundings, but this was sternly refused.

According to Clark, Mrs. Romaine, at about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, entered the office of the Postal Telegraph Company, at No. 1209 Broadway, and, because she failed to receive prompt attention, hurled an inkstand at the head of Manager D. W. Higgins.

Mr. Higgins ducked, and the inkstand struck the wall, scattering its contents over papers, furniture and those in the office.

Magistrate Mott sent Clark out for Higgins, who had failed to come to court, and when he reported that the latter could not be found, Mrs. Romaine was discharged.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

When they
would return.

CROWD LAUGHS AT A MOTHER'S PLEADINGS.

Rabble Surrounds an Injured Boy and Will Not Let Her See Him.

Little Claude Falls from the Retaining Wall of Bryant Park Reservoir.

Lies as if Dead and the Loungers Fail to Understand the Woman's Cries in French.

SHE FINALLY REACHES HIS SIDE.

Then the Men Refuse to Help Mrs. Bertholon Lift the Lad, but a Passing Workman Comes to Her Aid.

Claude Bertholon, who is eight and a half years old, took his sister, who is four years old, to the Bryant Park reservoir yesterday to play on the stone wall. Claude's mother is a modiste and lives at No. 425 Fifth avenue. She did not know where the children were until the little girl came home and told her that Claude was dead.

When the mother reached the reservoir, she found a crowd of men gathered around a body lying on the ground. She cried in French, but the men only laughed at her.

She finally reached the side of the crowd, but the men refused to help her lift the boy. A passing workman, however, came to her aid and helped her lift the boy.

The boy was taken to a hospital, and Mrs. Bertholon was allowed to see him.

The crowd of men was dispersed, and Mrs. Bertholon was able to see her son.

The boy is now recovering from his injuries.

Mrs. Bertholon is very grateful to the workman who helped her.

The crowd of men was very disrespectful to the mother.

The boy is now recovering from his injuries.

Mrs. Bertholon is very grateful to the workman who helped her.

The crowd of men was very disrespectful to the mother.

The boy is now recovering from his injuries.

Mrs. Bertholon is very grateful to the workman who helped her.

The crowd of men was very disrespectful to the mother.

The boy is now recovering from his injuries.

Mrs. Bertholon is very grateful to the workman who helped her.

The crowd of men was very disrespectful to the mother.

The boy is now recovering from his injuries.

Mrs. Bertholon is very grateful to the workman who helped her.

The crowd of men was very disrespectful to the mother.

The boy is now recovering from his injuries.

Mrs. Bertholon is very grateful to the workman who helped her.

The crowd of men was very disrespectful to the mother.

The boy is now recovering from his injuries.

Mrs. Bertholon is very grateful to the workman who helped her.

The crowd of men was very disrespectful to the mother.

Mamie Cameron Rejected Suitor Stole a Wavy Tress.

UNSAFE WALLS. Owner of the Brooklyn Building May Refuse to Pay Wrecking Bill Against.

Because James McKim, seven-story building, No. 510 Broadway, was declared to be unsafe on Friday, that thoroughfare from West Broadway to the river has been closed against street car travel.

In the worst of demolishing the unsafe walls the city put out and threw down bricks.

All yesterday morning inspectors of the Metropolitan Traction Company argued with Chief Building Inspector O'Connor in an endeavor to get through the Broadway lines old horse cars which now run on Spring street.

By various winding ways to Desbrosses street, Mr. O'Connor was obstructed.

James McKim, the owner and builder, would not discuss the action of the Building Department, but a friend said he would resist in the courts any effort to make him pay for the wrecking.

Usually when an inspector condemns a building a Board of Survey passes on the justice of the condemnation. This board's report is reviewed by the Supreme Court, and if the condemnation is approved demolition is ordered.

Not half a dozen times in the history of the Building Department has an arbitrary order for demolition been issued by the superintendent.

The superintendent had photographs of the leaning walls taken Sunday, and samples of brick and mortar were secured as evidence. The arbitrary work will stop when the fourth lot is reached, and the Board of Survey will determine whether the building is safe below that level or should be torn down.

Tenants of No. 528 West Twenty-first street yesterday called on the Building Department to take some action toward making secure a two-story brick building.

The wall in the rear of that tenement, which property belongs to the Trinity Church Corporation, and the tenants say the wall has been leaning toward the rear yard for six months.

The Trinity church corporation was warned that the wall was unsafe several months ago by the Building Department. There are twelve houses in the tenement and the yard has been their playground.

TO REINSTATE TWO CLUBMEN. Decision in Favor of John D. Wood and Another Who Were Deported.

Justice MacLean yesterday issued an alternative writ of mandamus, directing the Uptown Association to reinstate J. Carlton Wood and another.

The association is in the vicinity of Twenty-third street.

Mr. Wood, John I. D. Wood and others proposed the name of the Uptown Association to the Uptown Association.

Mr. Wood was blackballed, and Mr. Wood issued a circular, in which he said the act was a serious mistake.

He was dropped from the club and applied to the Supreme Court for redress, which was refused. He appealed to the Appellate Division, but it reversed the decision of the lower court.

Justice MacLean issued a preliminary writ of mandamus, directing the Uptown Chess Club to reinstate John D. Wood.

He had been expelled on a charge of Elwell, but did not belong to happening a letter that did not belong to happening.

CANNOT DISTURB HUSBAND'S BODY. Dr. Buchanan's Writ of Action Against a Cemetery Company Fails.

Justice MacLean yesterday overruled the demurrer in the case of Mrs. Margaret Buchanan against James W. Buchanan and the Greenwood Cemetery Company.

Mrs. Buchanan is the widow of Dr. Alexander Buchanan, who died in the Post-Graduate Hospital, September 2 last.

LOST HER HEAD SO STOLEN.

Scissors, Sharp Distress for Witching Little.

Lovesick Robber's Friend with That Golden Brown,

He Snipped from Whose Name He Just Adored—She Had Put Him in a Flutter,

AS A WAITRESS, SERVING BUTTER,

Cakes and Coffee; and He Asked Her for Her Hand—Heventhe Stealing of the Strand—She Him Ignored.

Two cuts with a pair of pocket scissors and one strand of dark brown hair fell from pretty Mamie Cameron's head. The strand dropped into the waiting hand of a waiter in a Park row restaurant.

There she met and formed the acquaintance of Lindsey, and filled his orders for butter cakes and other things. He fell in love with her, but she displayed no reciprocal feeling.

His compliments and bouquets were bestowed upon her, as were those of others, but all presents were stuffed into a little satin handbag by the girl and carried home at night to Miss Egan.

Lindsey did outside work for Dickinson & Co., dealers in photographic supplies, at No. 111 Nassau street, but just where he lives is not revealed, although the place is somewhere in Jersey City. Just now he is missing, and so is Mamie's strand of hair.

He was in the street as he was in the street. She was just home when Lindsey called.

"I'm so glad to find you," said Lindsey, "I have been looking for you everywhere."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

"I was so scared I did not know what to do," said Miss Cameron. "I was angry, too, and I just stepped and cried. Then I went to bed and told grandma. No, I never saw any more of you."

THEOSOPHISTS AND NOW MISSING. Regarding the whereabouts of the "Great Unknown," who theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

THEOSOPHISTS AND NOW MISSING. Regarding the whereabouts of the "Great Unknown," who theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

THEOSOPHISTS AND NOW MISSING. Regarding the whereabouts of the "Great Unknown," who theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

THEOSOPHISTS AND NOW MISSING. Regarding the whereabouts of the "Great Unknown," who theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

THEOSOPHISTS AND NOW MISSING. Regarding the whereabouts of the "Great Unknown," who theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

THEOSOPHISTS AND NOW MISSING. Regarding the whereabouts of the "Great Unknown," who theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home. Theosophists, is away from home.

UNSAFE WALLS. Owner of the Brooklyn Building May Refuse to Pay Wrecking Bill Against.

Because James McKim, seven-story building, No. 510 Broadway, was declared to be unsafe on Friday, that thoroughfare from West Broadway to the river has been closed against street car travel.

In the worst of demolishing the unsafe walls the city put out and threw down bricks.

All yesterday morning inspectors of the Metropolitan Traction Company argued with Chief Building Inspector O'Connor in an endeavor to get through the Broadway lines old horse cars which now run on Spring street.

By various winding ways to Desbrosses street, Mr. O'Connor was obstructed.

James McKim, the owner and builder, would not discuss the action of the Building Department, but a friend said he would resist in the courts any effort to make him pay for the wrecking.

Usually when an inspector condemns a building a Board of Survey passes on the justice of the condemnation. This board's report is reviewed by the Supreme Court, and if the condemnation is approved demolition is ordered.

Not half a dozen times in the history of the Building Department has an arbitrary order for demolition been issued by the superintendent.

The superintendent had photographs of the leaning walls taken Sunday, and samples of brick and mortar were secured as evidence. The arbitrary work will stop when the fourth lot is reached, and the Board of Survey will determine whether the building is safe below that level or should be torn down.

Tenants of No. 528 West Twenty-first street yesterday called on the Building Department to take some action toward making secure a two-story brick building.

The wall in the rear of that tenement, which property belongs to the Trinity Church Corporation, and the tenants say the wall has been leaning toward the rear yard for six months.

The Trinity church corporation was warned that the wall was unsafe several months ago by the Building Department. There are twelve houses in the tenement and the yard has been their playground.

TO REINSTATE TWO CLUBMEN. Decision in Favor of John D. Wood and Another Who Were Deported.

Justice MacLean yesterday issued an alternative writ of mandamus, directing the Uptown Association to reinstate J. Carlton Wood and another.

The association is in the vicinity of Twenty-third street.

Mr. Wood, John I. D. Wood and others proposed the name of the Uptown Association to the Uptown Association.

Mr. Wood was blackballed, and Mr. Wood issued a circular, in which he said the act was a serious mistake.

He was dropped from the club and applied to the Supreme Court for redress, which was refused. He appealed to the Appellate Division, but it reversed the decision of the lower court.

Justice MacLean issued a preliminary writ of mandamus, directing the Uptown Chess Club to reinstate John D. Wood.

He had been expelled on a charge of Elwell, but did not belong to happening a letter that did not belong to happening.

CANNOT DISTURB HUSBAND'S BODY. Dr. Buchanan's Writ of Action Against a Cemetery Company Fails.

Justice MacLean yesterday overruled the demurrer in the case of Mrs. Margaret Buchanan against James W. Buchanan and the Greenwood Cemetery Company.

Mrs. Buchanan is the widow of Dr. Alexander Buchanan, who died in the Post-Graduate Hospital, September 2 last.

After his burial in Greenwood the widow brought suit against her husband's brother and the Greenwood Cemetery Company for $10,000 damages for unlawful taking possession of the body and also for its recovery, which she wished to have interred elsewhere. The defense held that the burial code gave a man the right to arrange for the final disposition of his body after death and that falls particularly in the case of a man who is a member of a religious order.

UNSAFE WALLS. Owner of the Brooklyn Building May Refuse to Pay Wrecking Bill Against.

Because James McKim, seven-story building, No. 510 Broadway, was declared to be unsafe on Friday, that thoroughfare from West Broadway to the river has been closed against street car travel.

In the worst of demolishing the unsafe walls the city put out and threw down bricks.

All yesterday morning inspectors of the Metropolitan Traction Company argued with Chief Building Inspector O'Connor in an endeavor to get through the Broadway lines old horse cars which now run on Spring street.

By various winding ways to Desbrosses street, Mr. O'Connor was obstructed.

James McKim, the owner and builder, would not discuss the action of the Building Department, but a friend said he would resist in the courts any effort to make him pay for the wrecking.

Usually when an inspector condemns a building a Board of Survey passes on the justice of the condemnation. This board's report is reviewed by the Supreme Court, and if the condemnation is approved demolition is ordered.

Not half a dozen times in the history of the Building Department has an arbitrary order for demolition been issued by the superintendent.

The superintendent had photographs of the leaning walls taken Sunday, and samples of brick and mortar were secured as evidence. The arbitrary work will stop when the fourth lot is reached, and the Board of Survey will determine whether the building is safe below that level or should be torn down.

Tenants of No. 528 West Twenty-first street yesterday called on the Building Department to take some action toward making secure a two-story brick building.

The wall in the rear of that tenement, which property belongs to the Trinity Church Corporation, and the tenants say the wall has been leaning toward the rear yard for six months.

The Trinity church corporation was warned that the wall was unsafe several months ago by the Building Department. There are twelve houses in the tenement and the yard has been their playground.